

Black and white

Contrast is the essence of an arresting Taupo home

The interior of this four-bedroom beauty on a corner site is as dramatic as its exterior of black-painted Lines board, richly stained cedar and Stutex Canterbury River Rock.

White walls throughout contrast crisply with the icwila hardwood used for skirting boards, architraves and floors in entrance and kitchen and the near-black carpet laid elsewhere.

The gallery-style kitchen's island bench is positioned where the cook can chat with family and guests in the open plan dining/living area, which includes a comfortable step-down lounge with a gas fire mounted in river rock and an adjoining computer room - a lesson in the clever use of space. The 4m-high raked ceilings in the kitchen/living areas enhance the aura of light and size and outdoor courtyards extend the entertaining options.

A Fujitsu heat pump warms the sitting room and the stylishly tiled bathroom and on suite have underfloor heating.

With its great lines and excellent use of natural materials, the home is a show case for modern but practical design ideas. ●
